This use of rhetoric is not opposed to reality and may (often) be used to support that which is true. However, the definition that I propose as a possibility is the use of rhetoric as ‘speech or discourse that pretends to significance but lacks true meaning’. We’ve noted that the phrase ‘by making abortion illegal, you don't prevent abortion; you prevent safe abortion’ is fashioned to lead the hearer to a very specific conclusion; there is nothing wrong with that.
